PAUL ALLEN

"Last year was a great accomplishment for our team and organization," Allen says. "We won the Western Conference Championship and had our best-ever regular season record. We went from being eliminated in the prior season's first playoff round to contending for the NBA title. All the players on our team played with incredible heart and intensity, and our coaching staff did a terrific job. I feel proud of the way our staff helped the fans, sponsors, and media have a great regular season and playoffs.

"This season we want to build on last year's success and bring the championship back to Portland. We believe we have further strengthened our organization with the promotions of Geoff Petrie and Marshall Glickman to the position of Senior Vice President of Operations and Marketing, respectively."

Allen, together with fellow Seattle native Bill Gates, founded the computer software firm Microsoft in 1975. The 37-year-old Allen currently serves on the Microsoft Board of Directors and is the company's second largest shareholder. Paul also serves on the Board of Egghead Discount Software.

In 1985 Allen founded Asymetrix Corporation in Bellevue, Washington, and serves as its Chairman and President. Asymetrix launched its first product, ToolBook, in May, 1990. ToolBook is a software construction set for the Microsoft Windows environment which allows users to rapidly prototype and develop graphical business applications.

A resident of Mercer Island, Washington, Allen attended Lakeside School in Seattle and Washington State University. He has a basketball court in his backyard, which he uses to shoot around with friends.

BERT KOLDE

Bert Kolde serves as Vice-Chairman of the Trail Blazers. "What the Blazer organization accomplished last season was just sensational," he says. "The on-court success was a tribute to the dedication, effort, and teamwork of our players, coaches and front office. The spirit of success, accomplishment, and teamwork permeated the rest of the organization as well — everyone rose to the occasion and pitched in wherever they could to make our 20th anniversary season a very memorable one. Our fans deserve a big assist for our playoff success with the incredibly intense support they provided. Last year our team demonstrated its mental toughness and ability with its success in the playoffs. Now we are striving to take the final step and win it all."

Kolde is also Executive Vice President of Asymetrix Corporation, where he helped Paul Allen in the founding of that company and oversees general company operations. Prior to joining Asymetrix, Bert was a Vice President in the Finance Group at Seafirst Bank in Seattle. Bert earned his Bachelor's degree in Finance from Washington State University, after which he served as a U.S. Army officer in the Panama Canal Zone. He completed his Masters in Business Administration at the University of Washington in 1980.

Bert and his wife Alison have two little boys, Bronson and Sterling.

There's another super team in town!

We're the BP Team, and already we've won a crowd of fans in the Portland area! One big reason is our BP Super Unleaded Gasoline that's tops in power and performance!

It's super because it:

- Cleans clogged fuel injectors and keeps them clean.
- Is the first gasoline to pass the Official BMW test for lifetime intake valve cleanliness.
- Prevents carbon buildup on intake valves.
- Gives high level of corrosion protection.
- Provides superior acceleration.
- Offers super high octane.

So fill up with BP Super Unleaded and go with a winner!

On The Move

HARRY GLICKMAN

The Portland Trail Blazers, one of the most successful franchises in all of sports and a model for other organizations in professional basketball, point to the accomplishments of one man as the foundation for their rise to the top.

The man is Harry Glickman.

It was more than just a fitting tribute to the highly successful Blazer President when he was enshrined in the Oregon Sports Hall of Fame in August of 1986. It was recognition for the man who has been the compelling force in introducing and maintaining professional sports in the Pacific Northwest.

The success of the Trail Blazers has been unequalled since Glickman first began wooing a franchise to Portland as early as the mid-1960's.

In January of 1970, Glickman went to the league meetings of the NBA in Philadelphia with the backing for a franchise. Expansion into San Diego, Phoenix and Seattle, coupled with the transplanting of the Minneapolis Lakers to Los Angeles and the Philadelphia Warriors to San Francisco, opened up the West Coast to the predominately eastern league and enhanced Portland's bid for a team.

At the Philadelphia meetings, Glickman found the ground rules had changed and the ante had been increased for an expansion team. He returned home empty-handed but that initial setback was shortlived. A month later, with new financial backing, the Portland Trail Blazers were born at a meeting in Los Angeles.

Just seven seasons into existence, the Blazers brought a world championship to the city of Portland. Glickman's initial commitment to putting Portland at the forefront of the NBA has never wavered, avoiding the complacency that sometimes accompanies success.

Entering the 1990-91 season, the Blazers have sold out an astounding 581 consecutive home games at Memorial Coliseum. That's easily the longest string by any team in any sport.

Glickman was born in Portland and graduated from the University of Oregon School of Journalism in 1948 following a stint in Germany during World War II. He served as director of the university's athletic news bureau as a sophomore and covered the Ducks for the Oregonian during the era of the late Norm Van Brocklin, one of Glickman's close friends.

Plans to become a sports writer were tabled as Glickman began to open doors for himself in the area of promotions and publicity. After founding Oregon Sports Attractions in 1952, he devoted his efforts to promoting boxing, professional football and the Harlem Globetrotters, as well as non-sports related activities such as the Northwest tours of Judy Garland and Liberace.

A pre-season football game between the Los Angeles Rams and the Chicago Cardinals in 1952 was staged by Glickman at Multnomah Civic Stadium. With more than 29,100 fans in attendance, it was his first sellout. He continued to bring the NFL to Portland until 1969.

Glickman served as manager of Multnomah Civic Stadium in 1958 and 1959.

In the fall of 1960, Glickman brought professional hockey back to Portland after a 10-year absence, organizing the Portland Buckaroos of the old Western Hockey League. During the '60s, the Buckaroos finished first seven times and second twice in one nine-year stretch. They smashed every attendance record in professional hockey outside the then tightly-knit six-team National Hockey League. Glickman was named Hockey Executive of the Year by Hockey News in 1965.

Glickman's commitment to improving the quality of life for the people of Oregon has not been limited just to providing the benefits derived from the realm of sports. He is active in a wide variety of civic affairs.

He is a member of the board of directors of Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Oregon, and the U.S. Committee Sports for Israel. He's a Director Emeritus of the Oregon Sports Hall of Fame. In addition to his place in the Oregon Sports Hall of Fame, Glickman has been named to the Webfoot Society of the University of Oregon. Each year, the State of Oregon's top professional athlete is honored with the Harry Glickman Professional Athlete of the Year Award at The Oregonian Banquet of Champions.

Glickman and his wife, Joanne, have two daughters, Lynn and Jennifer, a son, Marshall, and a grandson, Joel. Marshall is senior vice-president of marketing, also with the club.

Glickman's hobbies include golf, tennis and fishing. He authored the popular book, 'Promoter Ain't a Dirty Word,' an account of his life in sports management.

SOMETIMES THE BEST THERE IS COMES FROM OUT IN OREGON.

It's tough to beat a good team with home court support. That's why "Insurance from out in Oregon" makes so much sense for residents of the Pacific Northwest.

Standard offers outstanding life and disability insurance and retirement plans for individuals and groups. Outstanding products have led to sales success. Sound investment of the premiums and home office efficiency have provided financial strength.

Leading from strength, Team Standard consistently pays policyowners higher dividends than projected at the time of purchase. It pays to play ball with Standard. Forget the hoopla from big eastern insurance companies. Capitalize on your home court advantage!

Standard

Insurance from out in Oregon.

MORRIS (BUCKY) BUCKWALTER

Vice-President of Basketball Operations Bucky Buckwalter is in his fifth full season overseeing Portland's basketball department, a position he assumed in January 1986 after serving as an assistant coach and chief scout for the club since 1979.

Through the years, Buckwalter has earned a reputation for discerning and discovering talent from a myriad of sources. His efforts have extended to every area of the globe and his courage to take calculated risks has been rewarded with numerous success stories.

It was Buckwalter's expertise that fostered Portland's bold move to act globally in the 1986 NBA draft, securing the rights to Drazen Petrovic of Yugoslavia and Arvydas Sabonis of the Soviet Union. Buckwalter has spent considerable time analyzing the foreign leagues, and, in fact, served as head coach of the Brazilian national team when it upset the Russian team in Moscow during 1975. He'd even studied international law at the American Institute for Foreign Trade before devoting all his energy toward basketball. In addition to Petrovic, several players have been added to the Blazer roster the last two summers. A major trade to obtain All-Star Buck Williams was engineered and free agent Wayne Cooper was brought in to shore up the front line a year ago. Oregonian Danny Ainge was acquired last August to contribute to what may be the NBA's best backcourt.

In earlier years, Buckwalter plucked several plums that have become valuable contributors to the success of the Trail Blazers. Foremost has been Terry Porter, the team's first round draft pick out of Wisconsin-Stevens Point; Jerome Kersey of Longwood College in Virgina and Steve Colter from New Mexico State, both second-round selections in 1984; Johnny Davis, a second round pick from Dayton in 1976; and Billy Ray Bates, a charismatic guard imported from the CBA during the 1979-80 season.

Buckwalter was introduced to professional basketball in the summer of 1972 when he joined the Seattle SuperSonics as an assistant coach. When Tom Nissalke was fired in January of 1973, Buckwalter took over as head coach for the remainder of the campaign. The following season, he was an assistant general manager to Bill Russell with the Sonics.

The 1974-75 season saw Buckwalter at the helm of the Utah Stars in the American Basketball Association. Perhaps his most notable accomplishment that year was to lure a youngster named Moses Malone from Petersburg, Virginia to forego a collegiate career in favor of a professional contract.

Buckwalter also coached the Fresno Stars of the Western Basketball Association for a year before joining the Trail Blazers staff.

His roots are deeply planted in the Oregon soil. A 1952 graduate of LaGrande High School in Eastern Oregon, Buckwalter led his Blue Mountain Conference team to the state tournament as a 6-2 senior forward with a reputation for being a furious competitor. LaGrande finished fourth in the tournament, and Buckwalter, who was also senior class president, was selected as an all-state forward.

Buckwalter played collegiate basketball at Utah, where he led the team in scoring as a sophomore and was all-conference his last two seasons. Those two final years saw Utah reach the NCAA tournament only to lose to eventual champion San Francisco, which featured Bill Russell.

After serving as an assistant coach for eight seasons at Utah, Buckwalter took over as head coach at Seattle University in 1967-68 and in five seasons posted a sparkling 79-49 record, a .617 winning percentage.

Buckwalter's journeys have provided enough stories to fill a library with volumes of interesting anecdotes. When he wasn't taming the wild world of basketball, he could even have been found riding the range of the wild, wild west on the silver screen in "Pillars in the Sky" with Jeff Chandler and Dorothy Malone or playing opposite the legendary John Wayne in the film "McQ."

Buckwalter's wife, Paula, and son, Bryan, are two of the Blazers' most visible supporters at games and functions.

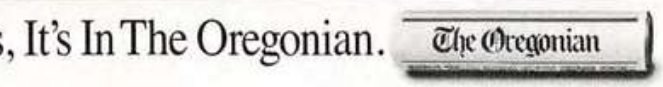
A few words about pride.

To a world striving to communicate, we provide quality communication products and services. In an era of technological advances, we are a leader in innovation. Yet our pride is being part of the communities we serve – the cities and towns which look to GTE for answers to communications needs. We're proud of those communities and we're proud to be part of them.

The front runner in communications.
And proud of it.

To follow the Blazers any closer, we'd need a bar of soap and a towel.

If It Matters To Oregonians, It's In The Oregonian.



Colgate®

RICK ADELMAN

The Portland Trail Blazers proved a lot of things to a lot of people during last season's run at the world championship. Head coach Rick Adelman proved, among other things, that nice guys don't have to finish last.

As he guided Portland to the NBA Finals in just his first full season as head coach, Adelman was under the scrutiny of the world's sports media. The adjectives used to describe the man and the coach were the same endearing words used by the players and fans who've known Rick since he captained the Blazers 20 years earlier, became an assistant coach with the team and then moved to the helm in February of 1988. One fan summed-up the affection of many Oregonians during the championship series with a sign that simply read, Rick City," a twist to the team's long-time war cry of Rip City. Adelmania, as one writer described it, had swept through Portland.

Using a less-is-more leadership style that seeks to "create an atmosphere where the player can succeed," Adelman led the Trail Blazers to the best season in their 20-year history. They logged 20 more victories than the previous season to finish with the best record, 59-23, and best road mark, 24-17, in franchise history. They rolled past Dallas, San Antonio and Phoenix to win the Western Conference Championship and advanced to the NBA Finals for the second time since joining the league in 1970.

Along the way, Adelman received Coach-of-the-Month honors in March and was runner-up for that award in November and January. His third-place finish in the NBA's Coach of the Year balloting was something of a disappointment to those who had observed the Blazers' quick turnaround from an unsettling 1988-89 season.

"We think he should have been coach of the year," says Clyde Drexler, speaking for his teammates. "No question about it, we came together after he became coach. So many things had happened last year, we just couldn't get it together. But Rick's demeanor and competitive fire shows through the team. The team is a reflection of Rick."

"Rick is a player's coach," adds Jerome Kersey. "He has played the game and has the instinctive feelings only a player can have. He has kept things simple and let people play their games. You want to go out there and work hard for a coach like that."

The approach that has led to Adelman's success has been formed from his experience as a player, community college coach, NBA assistant coach and as a family man. His basketball career began at St. Pius X High School in Downey, Calif. and at Loyola University, where he scored what was then a school-record 1,415 points (an 18.6 average) in four years, beginning with the 1964-65 season. His coach at the time, John Arndt, knew that Adelman would go on to be a success.

"He's always been a terrific guy," Arndt says. "He never scored 40 — he was too unselfish a player to do that. Rick would do all the other things. He'd play defense and rebound. On top of that, he'd have four or five steals in a game and go after loose balls, too."

"Basically Rick exemplifies the things we think are important to a winning player in the NBA," Todd said. "He's highly competitive, intelligent and an unselfish ball player; a leader by example, not vocally. Rick's a catalyst for the other four guys on the floor. He makes things happen for them as much as for himself."

Adelman was selected by Portland from San Diego in the expansion draft of 1970 and played three seasons with the Trail Blazers (1970-71 through 1972-73). He averaged 9.8 points and 4.6 assists in 237 games, establishing what then was a Portland record for assists with 413 (5.2) in the second season.

Overall, the 6-foot-2 guard played in 462 regular-season games during a seven-year stint in the NBA that included stops in San Diego, Portland, Chicago, New Orleans and Kansas City-Omaha. He recorded 3,579 points (for a 7.7 average), 1,606 assists (for a 3.5 average) and shot .415 from the field and .713 from the foul line.

After retiring from the NBA, Adelman returned to Loyola to earn a master's degree in history and then worked for a year with Converse in southern California before accepting a head coaching job at Chemeketa Community College in Salem, Oregon in 1977.

In six seasons at Chemeketa his teams amassed a 141-39 (.783) record, winning outright or sharing three Oregon community college championships and one Region 18 title. He also worked in counseling and taught physical education courses.

Jack Ramsay asked Adelman to join his coaching staff in Portland during the spring of 1983. In naming Adelman as an assistant, he said, "I liked him as a player because he played a thinking game. And that's what you need a lot of in coaching. He has been productive and creative with his teams.

"I think getting an assistant with head coaching experience is very important. I think it's also very important to have someone who played in the NBA. It's hard to get both of these. We got both in Rick."

Adelman said he looked at three things in considering an assistant's job in professional basketball.

"I wanted the head coaching job to be very stable," he says. "I wanted the organization to be solid. And the area where the team is located is very important to me. All of these situations were favorable in Portland."

Adelman maintained his spot on the Blazer bench when Mike Schuler succeeded Ramsey in May of 1986. In addition to assisting during the games and practices, much of his time was devoted to breaking down videotape and writing scouting reports on upcoming opponents. Game preparation became his specialty.

"Rick is the type of guy who will take three or four hours of his own time to film my footwork, film a practice and then break it down for me," said former Portland center Sam Bowie. "He'll spend time in the summer with you when he's not required to do it. He's concerned about us as individuals. And he helps you because he wants to do it, not because he wants credit for it."

Adelman became the seventh head coach in Blazer history on February 18, 1989 when Schuler was dismissed. Despite an unforgiving schedule and some key injuries down the stretch, the Blazers advanced to the NBA playoffs for the 12th time in 13 years following the coaching change. The word "interim" was dropped from his job title and he was awarded the position outright on May 11, 1989. Adelman signed a contract extension February 20, 1990 that runs through the 1992-93 season.

His kinder, gentler approach has been an underlying factor in the team's success. He allows his players to be creative and provides an opportunity for their input into the decision-making process. Observers have been quick to note the positive atmosphere that has surrounded the team in the last year.

"Basketball is a game of mistakes, especially at this level," Adelman says. "If you can't accept that, you're going to inhibit your players' creativity. This is a player's league, you have to accept that. And I think you get a lot more out of people by being positive rather than negative.

"I like to coach the way I wanted to be coached when I was a player," he adds. "That's just the way I've approached it, and the players have responded well. I try to include the players (in giving input) because it is as much their team as mine. I don't feel like I'm up here and they're down there."

"He's kept that rapport with the players, and that's not easy," Jerome Kersey says. "I think he understands the point that you have to relate to your players, let them know who's in charge but give them room, too. We have that even keel as a group, and it comes from him."

Adelman's popularity in Portland is due as much to his lifestyle off the court as it is to his success with a clipboard. He spends as much time as he can with his wife, Mary Kay, and children Kathy, R.J., Laura and David. All four children play school sports and Rick attends as many games as possible. Friends and neighbors claim that Adelman is the same "guy next door" that he was before the bright lights of the NBA discovered the City of Roses. Much of his free time is devoted to involvement in his church, local boys clubs and speaking to a variety of business and civic groups.

"Family is the most important part of my life," says Adelman, who turned 44 years old last June 16. "Everybody has a job, and it has to be important to you. But it's the people around you who are really important. If you lose sight of that, you've lost everything."

One goal within the Blazer's sight during the 1990-91 season will be an NBA Championship. Being edged by the Detroit Pistons in last June's thrilling final round has left Adelman hungry for the remaining step.

"What happened makes us want to come back and have the same kind of season," he says. "The 1989-90 season was a great success for all of us associated with the team. It was, however, just a step for us. We want to learn from last year. We're trying to build for years to come."

JACK SCHALOW

Jack Schalow begins his fifth season with the Trail Blazers, continuing in the assistant coach capacity that he re-assumed when Rick Adelman was elevated to the top spot in February 1989. A veteran of collegiate coaching ranks and the Continental Basketball Association, Schalow has served the Blazers on the bench as well as on the road as chief scout during his tenure with the club.

"Jack works very well with our players in a number of capacities," Adelman said. "He has considerable knowledge and experience that he's able to pass along. We're fortunate to have him with us."

Schalow joined the Blazers as a scout in December 1985. Prior to undertaking those duties, he was head coach of the Wyoming Wildcatters in the CBA. In the 1982-83 season, his first with the Wildcatters, Schalow guided the team to a runner-up finish in the league's Western Division in just the organization's first year of operation. Wyoming won the Western Division and went the distance in the CBA championship series before falling to the Albany Patroons in the final game. The 1984-85 season saw the Wildcatters win the Western Division regular season race but finish third in the division playoffs. In his three seasons at Wyoming, Schalow fashioned a 69-67 record and was runner-up for the CBA Coach-of-the-Year Award following the 1983-84 campaign.

Schalow is widely noted at the collegiate level as well. A graduate of University of the Pacific, Schalow served as freshman coach at his alma mater in Stockton, California. His other head coaching assignment came at Morehead State in Kentucky. Schalow also served as assistant coach at Duke (with Hubie Brown), Louisiana State and Seattle University. Two of his five seasons at Seattle were as an assistant under Bucky Buckwalter, current vice-president of basketball operations with the Blazers.

Jack is the father of daughter Traci Ann and son Terry. He and his wife, Valda, and children, Bridger and Lanie, reside in southwest Portland. He is a proficient horseman.

JOHN WETZEL

John Wetzel, a former player, assistant coach and head coach in the NBA, is in his third season with the Trail Blazers organization.

Wetzel, 45, was head coach with the Phoenix Suns during the 1987-88 season after serving as an assistant with the team for eight years. A veteran of seven seasons as a player with Los Angeles, Phoenix and Atlanta he retired in 1976 (with averages of 3.4 points and 1.4 assists) only to return to the game as a coach two years later.

"John Wetzel is one of the most experienced assistants in the league," said head coach Rick Adelman. "He's been in the league a long time and knows the business very well. I'm very happy that he's a part of our staff."

His first coaching experience came during the 1978-79 season when he guided the Washington Lumberjacks of the Western Basketball Association to a 29-19 record. A 1966 graduate of Virginia Tech, Wetzel was a finalist for the Cleveland Cavaliers' head coaching position in 1986.

Wetzel was an eighth-round selection of the Lakers in the 1966 NBA Draft but did not play that season due to a broken wrist. He was picked by Phoenix in the 1968 Expansion Draft but spent two years in military service before joining the Suns prior to the 1970-71 campaign. Following three seasons with Atlanta, Wetzel returned to Phoenix in time for the 1975-76 season that saw the Suns advance to the NBA Finals. In the summer of 1976, he became the first player to retire as a member of the Suns.

BRAD GREENBERG

Brad Greenberg, a scout with the Blazers for two seasons, is in his second season serving as the clubs' director of player personnel. He serves under the direction of Vice-President of Basketball Operations Bucky Buckwalter, focusing his efforts on roster management. His duties include scouring the college ranks and international leagues for future prospects, keeping tabs on who's doing what in the CBA, and researching possible trade opportunities with other NBA clubs.

Greenberg served as assistant coach with the Los Angeles Clippers for three years, beginning with the 1984-85 season. He worked under Jim Lynam (a former Portland assistant) for one year and under Don Chaney for two seasons. He also held the title of player personnel director for two seasons before leaving to join the New York Knicks as an assistant coach midway through the 1986-87 season.

A standout player for Lynam at American University, Greenberg became an assistant coach with the Eagles upon graduation in 1977. He moved on to be an assistant at St. Joseph's University for six years (working with Lynam for three) before joining the Clippers. While Greenberg was at St. Joseph's, the team posted a 141-65 record, advancing to the NCAA's twice and the NIT three times.

Greenberg's wife, Fran Greenberg, is the former director of public relations for the Continental Basketball Association and a columnist for HOOP Magazine. They are the parents of four-year-old son, Cory.

MIKE SHIMENSKY

Mike Shimensky is in his fourth season as trainer for the Trail Blazers, and 10th season as a trainer in the NBA.

Moving to the Northwest was something of a homecoming for the 43-year-old Shimensky. After attending Centralia Junior College, where he played baseball and basketball, Shimensky graduated from Central Washington University.

He earned a masters degree in athletic training at the University of Arizona in 1973 and served as that schools assistant trainer, working with basketball, football and track and field. He became the first certified full-time trainer in the Phoenix school system and regularly held training seminars through the Sports Medicine Clinic to benefit coaches, trainers and nurses by providing them with better insight into sports-related injuries.

Shimensky joined the Clippers in September of 1981 and spent more time with that organization than any player, coach or front office personnel. He earned an outstanding reputation that led to his being hired by the Blazers following the retirement of Ron Culp (now with Miami) after 13 years.

A member of the National Athletic Trainers Association and the National Strength and Conditioning Association, Shimensky enjoys playing tennis and softball in his spare time. Mike and his wife, Roberta, have three children, Daniel, Andrew and Lauren.

Panasonic introduces a pocket cordless phone with a new look, a new size and a new noise reduction system: Sound Charger.™

This cordless is designed with our Sound Charge noise reduction system. It's a double filter system with two microprocessors. One in the base unit, the other in the handset. They're designed to filter background noise and amplify a caller's voice. So your conversations come through loud and clear.

The new Panasonic KX-T4000 is engineered with two dialing pads. It's like owning two phones. Dial from the speakerphone base or the handset.

There's also 10-channel selectable switching from the handset. So you can always speak on the clearest channel. There's speed dialing and a battery you replace yourself. Even a fully charged spare battery in the base. All in a phone that folds in half and fits in your shirt pocket.

Heard enough? Then pick up the new cordless phone with Sound Charger. The size will amaze you. The sound will astonish you. ■

Tom Peterson's OREGON'S FIRST FAMILY OF RETAILING

Tom Peterson's is truly a home grown company that planted its first roots at SE 82nd and Foster Rd. and stayed put. Over the years Tom's has grown right along with the rest of Portland, becoming the successful type of company our fine city is known for. Tom is now established as a neighborhood fixture with four great stores, all at that same SE 82nd and Foster Rd. location. It has become the area's most established outlet filling the electronic, appliance, and home furnishing needs of people throughout the state.

Tom Peterson's, still owned and operated by Oregon's first family of retailing is excited about future growth, with a commitment to customer satisfaction and the continued community support it has received for the past 25 years.

Thank you Portland, Oregon and S.W. Washington, too!

Yea, Blazers!
Portland's 1989-90 NBA Finalists.

In life, as in basketball, good coverage is essential.

No one appreciates good coverage more than ODS Health Plan. Because we've been offering complete, high quality medical and dental coverage since 1955. Fact is, we're Oregon's second-largest insurance carrier.

What's more, we really hustle when it comes to claims: almost 90% are processed within 10 days, and over half are paid in just five days. So if you want health care without compromise, put ODS Heath Plan on your team. We've got you covered.

You May Have To Share The Green With A Deer.

It's not uncommon in the Highlands of Oregon, on the west slope of Mt. Hood, to discover a deer crossing your path. It's part of the natural charm that has brought couples back season after season to The Resort at The Mountain. And now, this picturesque setting has become a favorite meeting site for both large and small groups.

The Resort at The Mountain, seasoned with Scottish touches, respectful of the magnificent surroundings, and committed to a mountain of choices for every meeting.

For more meeting details, please call 1-800-733-0800.

The Trail Blazers have the distinction of handing both the Boston Celtics and Los Angeles Lakers the biggest defeats in those teams' storied histories. Portland blasted Boston, 128-84, on January 4, 1977. The Lakers were served with a 130-88 beating at Portland on April 22, 1990.

The Long And The Short Of It

The longest game in Trail Blazer history was a three-hour 24-minute marathon against Chicago that was settled after four overtimes (3-16-84). Three games lasted exactly two-hours 30-minutes to set the record for longest regulation contests. They included games at San Antonio (1-23-77) and Golden State (3-18-88) and versus Kansas City (3-11-77). The shortest game in Blazer history was a one-hour 42-minute encounter with the Lakers in Los Angeles (12-29-78).

Portland's Memorial Coliseum hosted its only NBA doubleheader involving the Trail Blazers on February 8, 1972. Seattle took on Houston in the opener before the Blazers edged the Cincinnati Royals, 104-100, in the nightcap.

alpenrose DAIRY

THE HISTORY OF ALPENROSE DAIRY, INC.

Pasturelands once stretched west of Portland between Hillsdale and Beaverton. Due to population growth and commercial production, times have changed. Alpenrose Dairy, Inc. on Shattuck Road stands as a reminder of quieter days. Of this once-thriving pastoral community, Alpenrose is the only survivor, and it has developed into much more than a dairy.

The park has facilities to accommodate a variety of public entertainment. One of these facilities is the Alpenrose Stadium where baseball games have been played since 1956.

Not far from the Alpenrose Stadium is Dairyville, a replica of western frontier town. There are dozens of false-front shops which are filled with treasured antiques, a doll museum, an old-fashioned ice cream parlor, a harness store, a music shop, and other reminders of a remote era. Behind Dairyville is one of the Northwest's finest quarter-midget racing arenas.

Other events at Dairyland during the season include the Shetland Shodeo, dog shows, and a Little Britches rodeo. Admission is always free at Alpenrose Dairyland.

FAMOUS FIRSTS IN BLAZER HISTORY

Feb. 6, 1970: Professional basketball's first day in Portland as the city is granted an NBA franchise.

Mar. 23, 1970: Princeton's Geoff Petrie is selected as Portland's first college draft choice.

Apr. 21, 1970: Rolland Todd of the University of Nevada-Las Vegas is hired as the first head coach of the Trail Blazers.

Aug. 17, 1970: Bill Schonely is named the Blazers' first broadcaster.

Oct. 16, 1970: A crowd of 4,273 watches as Portland defeats Cleveland, 115-112, at Memorial Coliseum in the Blazers' first regular season contest. A free throw by Jim Barnett at the 9:18 mark of the 1st quarter is the first point scored by a Trail Blazer. Ron Knight charts the first field goal at 8:25 of the opening period.

Oct. 23, 1970: KPTV Channel 12 aires the first televised Trail Blazer game, from Seattle.

Jan. 12, 1971: Geoff Petrie becomes the first Trail Blazer to play in an NBA All-Star Game.

July 29, 1971: Rick Adelman is named the first captain in team history.

Nov. 3, 1973: Portland defeats the world champion New York Knicks, 107-100, in front of 12,086 Coliseum fans—the first home crowd in history to top the 12,000 mark.

Nov. 1, 1974: President Gerald Ford watches the Blazers defeat Buffalo, 113-106, at Memorial Coliseum. According to White House reports at that time, it was the first time a United States President attended an NBA game.

June 5, 1977: The Trail Blazers turn back the Philadelphia 76ers, 109-107, to win the NBA Championship Series, 4-2, giving Portland its first world championship.

Oct. 22, 1977: Portland tops San Antonio, 130-115, in the first closed circuit telecast at the Paramount Theatre. A crowd of 2,851 turns out to watch the game televised via big screen from the Coliseum.

Oct. 10, 1980: Portland becomes the first NBA team to award four college scholarships as part of the league's scholarship program.

Jan. 25, 1983: ON-TV aires a Blazer home game with the Los Angeles Lakers. It was the team's first cable television game.

Apr. 24, 1987: Mike Schuler is honored as the NBA Coach of the Year, the first Blazer coach to earn the Red Auerbach Trophy.

Feb. 21, 1988: Jim Paxson becomes the first player to record 10,000 career points in a Trail Blazer uniform during a 117-112 victory over San Antonio.

The Trail Blazers played their only official regular season game outside the United States on March 10, 1974. Portland lost to the Buffalo Braves, 122-112, in Toronto.

PORTLAND TRADE HISTORY

NOTES TO TRADE HISTORY

1. If a third team is not mentioned in the transaction then assume any draft pick is the choice of the team Portland is trading with or Portland's choice.
2. If a draft choice acquired in a transaction is subsequently traded by Portland in that original deal the choice is listed as: choice traded. Everywhere else when a draft choice is mentioned the player eventually selected either by Portland or by the team that finally wound up with that draft choice is shown in parenthesis.
3. In trades only what actually happened is given. If a team has several options in a deal only the one they decided to use is given.

1991 DRAFT NOTES:

(1) Atlanta has the option to swap choices with Sacramento in 1991 or 1992. Option exercisable at least seven days before applicable draft. If option exercised for 1991, Atlanta can gain maximum of seven spots. Atlanta may not swap with a "lottery" pick (Theus-Wittman 6/27/88).

(2) For agreeing not to choose Kareem Abdul-Jabbar in 1988 Expansion Draft, Miami will receive LA Lakers' choice in either 1991 or 1992. Choice will be conveyed at Miami's option, exercisable 48 hours before 1991 Draft (6/22/88).

(3) Atlanta must convey lessor of its own second round draft choice or Sacramento's second round draft choice to the Kings.

(4) Charlotte must convey to Phoenix either the Hornet's second round choice or Denver's second choice no later than June 1, 1991.

(5) In the event that Milwaukee's own second round pick in 1991 is more favorable than Philadelphia's second round pick in 1991, Minnesota and Milwaukee will swap such 1991 second round picks.

Looking Ahead?
The transaction that will take the longest to complete is the swapping of a 1999 second round draft choice between Detroit and Indiana. The Pacers awarded the Pistons their pick that year in exchange for Detroit allowing assistant coach Dick Versace to take over the head coaching duties with Indiana.

PORTLAND TRAIL BLAZERS 1990 PLAYOFFS

FIRST ROUND

BLAZERS 109, MAVERICKS 102 — April 26, 1990
At Portland (Game 1, 1-0)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
28-28	27-23	22-16	32-35	109-102	12,884

The third period proved to be the turning point as the Blazers outscored the Mavericks, 22-16, largely on the strength of nine points by Buck Williams, who made four of six field goals in the period. . . The Blazers pulled down 13 third-quarter rebounds (9 offensive) and finished the quarter with a 77-67 lead. . . 17 of Portland's 22 points in the third period came off second-chance baskets or Dallas turnovers. . . In the fourth, the Mavericks pulled to within 91-89 after Derek Harper, the Mavs' leading scorer with 24 points, hit a 3-point shot. . . Portland responded with a 13-4 run, that included six straight foul shots by the Blazers' leading scorer, Terry Porter (28 points). . . Portland outrebounded Dallas 47-33. . . Buck Williams grabbed a game-high 16 rebounds (7 offensive), with 21 points. . . Roy Tarpley tallied 22 points and 14 rebounds. . . The Blazer bench outscored the Maverick reserves 20-17, with Cliff Robinson adding 7 points in 10 minutes of action. . . Porter tied an NBA playoff record by making and attempting 11-of-12 free throws in the fourth quarter.

BLAZERS 114, MAVERICKS 107 — April 28, 1990
At Portland (Game 2, 2-0)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
24-38	39-27	27-18	24-24	114-107	12,884

The Blazer bench keyed the triumph, outscoring the Maverick reserves 35-22. . . Dallas began by hitting seven of its first eight shots and finished the opening quarter 14-of-23 from the field. . . Drazen Petrovic and Danny Young combined for 22 of Portland's first 24 points in the second period, to trim a 14-point Dallas lead. . . The Blazers received 14 points from Petrovic and eight points from Young, as each guard sank two 3-point shots in a seven-minute stretch that brought Portland to within 51-48. . . Portland held Dallas below 20 points in the third-quarter for the second consecutive contest, to enter the fourth quarter with a 90-83 lead. . . Steve Alford knocked down a 3-point basket to pull Dallas within 110-107 with 33.8 seconds left, before Clyde Drexler (14 points) sank a pair of free throws and, followed by stripping Rolando Blackman of the ball. . . Portland had seven players score in double figures. . . Derek Harper led the Mavericks with 23 points, but was 0-for-9 from the field in the second half.

BLAZERS 106, MAVERICKS 92 — May 1, 1990
At Dallas (Game 3, 3-0)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
34-28	24-15	18-26	30-23	106-92	17,007

The Trail Blazers advanced to the second round for the first time since 1985, as they completed a three-game sweep over the Mavericks. . . Buck Williams collected 7 points with 10 rebounds in 11 minutes of action, before suffering a corneal abrasion to his right eye and a crack in the bone near the sinus area after taking an elbow from James Donaldson in the first quarter. . . Kevin Duckworth was injured with 5:02 left in the third quarter, as he fractured the fourth metacarpal on his right hand by colliding with Roy Tarpley. . . The Blazers led, 58-43, at halftime, outscoring Dallas 18-3 in the final 6:47 of the second quarter. . . They held Dallas to 19-of-44 shooting and 14-of-16 free throw attempts in the first half. . . After leading by as many as 17 points in the third quarter, the Blazer lead was sliced to 76-69 at the end of the third quarter. . . Dallas closed to within 87-85 with 5:27 left to play. . . Portland answered with a 10-2 run, highlighted by the play of Clyde Drexler, who had three points, two assists and a steal in three minutes to lift Portland to a 97-87 lead they would not relinquish. . . Jerome Kersey led all scorers with 29 points. . . Drexler and Terry Porter added 20 points each. . . Rolando Blackman led the Mavericks with 23 points, and six Dallas players scored in double figures. . . The 92 points were the fewest ever scored by a Portland playoff opponent on their home floor.

SECOND ROUND

BLAZERS 107, SPURS 94, — May 5, 1990
At Portland (Game 1, 1-0)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
31-22	21-30	26-22	29-20	107-94	12,884

Kevin Duckworth missed his first game (fractured fourth metacarpal, right hand) as Cliff Robinson (9 points, 4 rebounds) started at center. . . The Trail Blazers outrebounded the Spurs, 48-38, and grabbed 23 offensive boards to San Antonio's 13. . . Portland converted 29 of 45 free throws while the Spurs made 10 of 15 from the foul line. . . The Portland defense came up with 13 steals (4 by Clyde Drexler) and forced 22 San Antonio turnovers. . . Buck Williams, knocked out of game three against Dallas, scored 17 points and grabbed 6 rebounds in 36 minutes. . . Portland jumped out to a 31-22 first quarter lead but made just 6 of 22 field goal attempts in the second period. . . After the Spurs took a 64-56 lead in the third quarter, the Blazers answered with an 11-0 run that ultimately gave them a 73-69 lead late in the third period that they would never surrender. . . Jerome Kersey, the Blazer's leader in scoring (25 points) and rebounding (16), scored eight points in four minutes to help boost the Portland lead to 97-82. . . Clyde Drexler tallied 23 points as five Blazers scored in double figures. . . The Spurs were led by Frank Brickowski's 20-points (9-12 FGs) off the bench. . . For only the second time all season, David Robinson failed to reach double-figures in scoring as he was held to just 9 points and 9 rebounds and made only one shot — a tip-in — in the final 24 minutes.

BLAZERS 122, SPURS 112, — May 8, 1990
At Portland (Game 2, 2-0)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
27-27	36-28	34-22	25-35	122-112	12,884

Kevin Duckworth missed his second consecutive game and Cliff Robinson (6 points, 4 rebounds) earned his second start of the playoffs. . . After opening the game by making just 9 of its first 26 shots from the floor, Portland used a 9-2 run to finish the opening quarter tied at 27. . . The Blazer defense shut down the Spurs' offense in the third quarter as San Antonio made just 5-of-15 field goal attempts (.333), committed 6 turnovers and was outscored 24-11 in the first nine minutes of the period. . . The Blazer bench outscored the Spur reserves, 31-21, as Drazen Petrovic (11 points) and Danny Young (10 points) reached double-figures in scoring. . . Wayne Cooper tallied 6 rebounds, 4 points and 4 blocked shots in 19 minutes of action. . . Terry Porter was the Blazers' leading scorer with 27 points. . . Terry Cummings led all scorers with 33 points and David Robinson added 31 for the Spurs. . . Portland finished with a team playoff-record 43 free throws in a record 51 attempts, while San Antonio was 16-for-25 from the foul line.

SPURS 121, BLAZERS 98, — May 10, 1990
At San Antonio (Game 3, 2-1)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
22-27	23-34	27-25	26-35	98-121	15,910

As the series moved to the HemisFair Arena, the Trail Blazers suffered their first loss in the 1990 NBA playoffs. . . After winning the battle of the boards in the first two games of the series, Portland was outrebounded, 51-35, by San Antonio. . . The Spurs jumped out to an 8-2 lead in the first quarter and never trailed after that. . . In the opening period, San Antonio sank 9 of its first 12 shots to take a 21-10 lead. . . After cutting the San Antonio lead to 43-37, the Blazers were outscored 18-8 and trailed 61-45 at the half. . . David Robinson (28 points, 11-14 FGs) led the Spurs with 10 second quarter points. . . A 6-1 Portland run trimmed the margin to 72-62, but the Blazers never did cut the margin to single-digits. . . The Spurs held the Blazers scoreless from the field in the first five minutes of the final quarter. . . The Spurs led by as many as 30 points (115-85) in the final period. . . The Blazers had six players reach double-figures in scoring, led by Terry Porter and Buck Williams who scored 18 points each. . . Six San Antonio players scored in double-figures. . . Rod Strickland dished out a career playoff-high 17 assists, while Robinson charted 8 blocked shots.

SPURS 115, BLAZERS 105, — May 12, 1990
At San Antonio (Game 4, 2-2)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
33-25	18-37	20-24	34-29	105-115	15,910

The Trail Blazers, without the services of Kevin Duckworth (fractured fourth metacarpal, right hand) and Wayne Cooper (back spasms) and with Mark Bryant playing on a sprained ankle, lost back-to-back games for the first time in the playoffs (and the first time since losses at Los Angeles March 30 and at Seattle April 3). . . Portland took a 33-25 first quarter lead, largely due to the play of Clyde Drexler, who tallied 16 points (6-8 FGs) in the first period. . . Portland opened the game by making 10 of its first 14 shots. . . The Blazers led 42-38 with 6:48 left in the second period when the Spurs went on a 24-9 run to take a 62-51 halftime advantage. . . Portland made only one field goal in the final six minutes of the first half. . . San Antonio increased its lead to 86-71, as the Blazers made only 8 of 22 shots from the field in the third quarter. . . Jerome Kersey, 2-for-11 from the field in the first three quarters, erupted with 17 of his 23 points in the final eight minutes of the game. . . Portland closed to within 111-102 with 1:07 remaining. . . San Antonio's Terry Cummings led all scorers with 35 points and grabbed a game-high 11 rebounds. . . The Blazers were led by Drexler (27) in scoring and Buck Williams (10) in rebounds. . . For the second consecutive game, the Spurs outrebounded the Blazers (41-39).

BLAZERS 138, SPURS 132 (2OT), — May 15, 1990
At Portland (Game 5, 3-2)

1	2	3	4	OT	OT	Final	Att.
41-27	31-26	27-34	20-32	7-7	12-6	138-132	12,884

This was the second time in Portland franchise history a playoff game went two extra periods. . . Portland again started Cliff Robinson in place of the injured Kevin Duckworth at center, and was without the services of Wayne Cooper. . . The Blazers jumped out to a 41-27 first quarter lead as Terry Porter (17 points) and Clyde Drexler (12 points) opened the scoring in double-figures. . . Porter's hot hand carried into the second quarter, as he closed the first half with 27 points (10-11 FGs) and was 5-for-6 from three-point territory. . . Drexler had 18 points (7-10 FGs) and six assists as the Blazers took a 72-53 lead into the locker room at halftime. . . After leading 91-69 with 5:17 to go in the third period, the Spurs mounted an impressive comeback behind Terry Cummings, who scored 12 points in the third period to cut the lead to 99-87 entering the fourth quarter. . . The Spurs put together a 13-2 run to open the fourth period and pull within 101-100 with 8:47 left in regulation. . . The Blazers led 119-116 with 7.9 seconds left in regulation when David Wingate — 0-for-13 from 3-point range during the regular season — sent the game into overtime with a 3-point basket. . . The Blazers came back and led 126-124 with 52 seconds left in overtime, but after a Portland turnover, Sean Elliott made a 19-foot jump shot to force another extra period. . . Portland trailed 131-130 with 1:41 remaining in the second overtime when Terry Porter made two free throws to give the Blazers a 132-131 lead they would not relinquish. . . Jerome Kersey (23 points, 10 rebounds, 54 minutes) sank two free throws in 11.1 seconds left to assure the victory. . . There were 24 Portland playoff records set in the contest.

SPURS 112, BLAZERS 97, — May 17, 1990
At San Antonio (Game 6, 3-3)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
27-26	14-26	24-25	32-35	97-112	15,910

Game Six proved to be a highly-emotional game, with three sets of double-technical fouls called and a third-quarter altercation between Clyde Drexler and Willie Anderson that resulted in Drexler's ejection. . . The Blazers had six of their eight players score as they built a one-point first quarter lead, despite the Spurs converting 13 of their first 21 shots. . . San Antonio's Willie Anderson, who finished the contest with a career playoff-high 30 points (13-19 FGs), led all scorers with 10 first-quarter points. . . Cliff Robinson, starting once again at center for the Trail Blazers, notched 8 points in the opening period en route to a career playoff-high 20 points. . . In the second quarter, Portland shot only .222 (4-18) from the field and was outrebounded 18-12, as San Antonio entered the locker room at halftime with a 52-41 advantage. . . At halftime, the Blazers were shooting .395 (17-43) from the field while the Spurs owned a .500 (22-44) percentage. . . In the second half, San Antonio led by as many as 16 points before Portland trimmed the lead to 91-79 with 6:31 to play. . . The Spurs then converted an 8-2 spurt into a 99-81 lead with 3:50 left. . . The Blazers, who shot only .415 (34-82) from the field, were led in scoring by Jerome Kersey (22) and in rebounds by Buck Williams (10). . . For the fifth consecutive game, the Blazers were outrebounded by the Spurs, 48-44. . . David Robinson scored 24 points and grabbed 13 rebounds for San Antonio.

BLAZERS 108, SPURS 105, — May 19, 1990
At Portland (Game 7, 4-3)

1	2	3	4	OT	Final	Att.
31-24	21-22	21-26	24-25	11-8	108-105	12,884

For the first time in franchise history, the Trail Blazers were involved in a seventh game of a playoff series. . . For the first time in the series, the Blazer roster was at full-strength as centers Kevin Duckworth and Wayne Cooper were in uniform and able to play. . . Portland, a perfect 5-1 during the 1990 playoffs, turned a nine-point run late in the first quarter into a 31-24 advantage as Terry Porter opened the scoring with 13 first-quarter points. . . Willie Anderson countered with 10 points in the opening period. . . In the second quarter, Portland sank just 8 of 21 shots (.381) as the Spurs, behind Terry Cummings' 10-points closed the gap to 52-46 at halftime. . . In the third quarter, the Spurs shot .529 (9-17) from the field to close within 73-72 at the end of the period. . . Early in the fourth quarter, San Antonio used a nine-point surge to lead 81-75 with 9:30 left in the contest. . . The Blazers cut the gap to 92-90 with 3:39 remaining before the Spurs answered with five consecutive points to lead 97-90 with 2:32 to go. . . After a Kevin Duckworth field goal, Clyde Drexler buried a 3-pointer to pull Portland to within 97-95. . . Jerome Kersey followed with a breakaway dunk with 1:17 left to tie the game 97-97. . . The Blazers tried an unsuccessful last-second shot by Terry Porter, and for the second time in the series, the two teams went into overtime. . . With the game tied 103-103 and 28.9 seconds remaining, Rod Strickland threw an over-the-head pass that was stolen by Jerome Kersey. . . Kersey passed downcourt to Drexler, who was fouled by David Robinson, his sixth foul in the contest. . . Drexler, who had seven points in the extra period, made five consecutive foul shots to ice the Portland victory. . . Terry Porter led all scorers with 36 points (14-16 FTs). . . For the first time since their Game One victory, the Blazers outrebounded the Spurs, 60-48. . . The Blazers received double-doubles from Drexler (22 points, 13 rebounds), Jerome Kersey (21 points, 15 rebounds, 6 steals) and Buck Williams (12 points, 15 rebounds). . . This victory marked Portland's 13th consecutive homecourt victory over San Antonio and vaulted the Trail Blazers into the Western Conference Finals for only the second time in franchise history.

WESTERN CONFERENCE FINALS

BLAZERS 100, SUNS 98 — May 21, 1990

Kevin Johnson scored 12 points and the Phoenix defense held Portland to just .333 shooting from the field in the opening period. . . Drazen Petrovic came off the bench in the second quarter to score 11 points and help lift Portland to a 50-48 halftime lead. . . The Blazer defense held Phoenix to 7-of-19 shooting from the field (.368). . . In the third quarter, Portland increased its lead to 84-80 entering the final period. . . Jerome Kersey, who made just one of eight shots in the first half, exploded for 13 points on 6-of-7 shooting from the field while Clyde Drexler had 10 points (5-6 FGs) in the third period. . . Phoenix cut the Portland lead to 94-93 with 5:19 left, before the Trail Blazer defense held the Suns scoreless for the next 3:26. . . After three consecutive Portland turnovers, Tom Chambers completed a three-point play that tied the game 98-98 with 1:09 on the clock. . . Following a missed layup by Johnson, Kevin Duckworth made a jump shot with 16.4 seconds remaining that proved to be the margin of victory. . . Danny Young blocked Mike McGee's 3-point attempt with 3.5 seconds left to preserve the win. . . Six Blazers scored in double-figures, including all five starters, led by Clyde Drexler's double-double of 20 points and 10 rebounds. . . Tom Chambers led all scorers with 29 points. . . Kevin Johnson added 20 points and 11 assists.

BLAZERS 108, SUNS 107 — May 23, 1990
At Portland (Game 2, 2-0)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
17-28	24-31	41-32	26-16	108-107	12,884

Phoenix jumped out to an early 28-17 lead as Portland made just 6 of 23 shots from the field (.261) in the first quarter. . . After making just 10 of 23 second-quarter shots (.435), and committing 15 first-half turnovers, Portland trailed 59-41 at halftime. . . The Blazers shot .348 from the field (16-46 in the first half while the Suns shined with a .511 (23-45) percentage. . . At halftime, Dan Majerle (18 points, 8-10 FGs), Tom Chambers (11 points) and Kevin Johnson (10 points) had all reached double figures in scoring, while Jerome Kersey (13 points) was the lone Blazer to reach that plateau. . . Portland's 41 first-half point total marked the second fewest points ever scored by the Blazers in one half of a playoff game. . . With 5:03 left in the third quarter, the Suns still enjoyed an 18-point lead, 78-60. . . Portland used a 22-13 spurt to cut the Phoenix lead to 91-82 at the end of three quarters, and then paired the deficit to 93-90 with seven minutes to go, with an eight-point run that included six consecutive points by Clyde Drexler. . . Portland tied the game at 106 on a 3-point basket by Terry Porter. . . After being fouled by Jerome Kersey, Kevin Johnson missed the first of two foul shots before making the second to give the Suns a 107-106 advantage with 27.2 seconds remaining. . . Porter responded with a 13-foot jump shot with 12.7 seconds left that provided the margin of victory. . . Jerome Kersey finished with a game-high 29 points and 11 rebounds. . . Portland, coming off an emotional victory over the Los Angeles Lakers just two days prior, notched its 12th triumph in the month of March. . . The first quarter was delayed 11 minutes after Jerome Kersey's thunderous slam dunk tore the net off the basket. . . The Blazers led throughout the contest, although John Battle's three-point field goal with 1:27 left cut the margin to 106-102. . . The Hawks shot .544 (43-79) from the field. . . Portland made only 6-of-20 shots in the third period en route to a .471 (41-87) worksheet. . . Atlanta was led by Dominique Wilkins' 27 points and 12 rebounds. . . All five Trail Blazer starters reached double-digits in scoring, led by Buck Williams' 18 points and 12 rebounds. . . Off the bench, Drazen Petrovic (13 points), Cliff Robinson (12) and Wayne Cooper (10) were especially effective in the second quarter, when they combined to convert 11-of-15 field goal attempts. . . The Blazer bench outscored the Hawks reserves, 38-24. . . The Hawks outrebounded the Blazers, 38-36.

Moses Malone holds or shares Free Throws Attempted records for four different teams against Portland. He attempted 22 while with Atlanta, 21 with Philadelphia, 19 with Houston and 16 with Washington.

The Blazers defeated the Celtics in Portland for the second consecutive season, the first time they won back-to-back matchups at home in the series since 1978-79. . . Portland outscored Boston, 32-4, in fastbreak opportunities. . . The Celtics trimmed the Blazers' 13-point halftime lead to 92-86 with 8:40 left in the game, before Portland reeled off eight straight points to pull away. . . The Blazers, who entered the contest ranked first in the NBA in rebounding, won the battle of the boards with the Celtics (ranked third) 53-41, by outrebounding Boston 33-19 in the second half. . . Portland shot .467 (43-92) from the field while holding Boston to a .393 (35-89) percentage, including a .295 (13-44) showing in the second half. . . Kevin McHale led all scorers with 34 points (14-14 FTs). . . All five Blazer starters scored in double-figures, and Jerome Kersey (24), Buck Williams (23) and Clyde Drexler (21) all topped the twenty-point plateau. . . Kersey and Williams led the Blazers in rebounding with 13 and 12 boards apiece. . . Larry Bird scored 21 points and Reggie Lewis tallied 14 points, the only Celtics other than McHale to reach double-digits in scoring.

BLAZERS 130, CELTICS 117, March 7, 1990

Portland earned its first season series sweep of Boston with only their eighth victory in 29 trips to the Garden. . . The triumph pushed Portland's road record over .500 at 15-14. . . The Blazers sank 7 of their first 11 shots and never trailed throughout the game. . . The Celtics cut a 20-point lead in half and pulled to within 116-106 with six minutes left, but the Blazers answered with an 8-2 run to preserve the victory. . . The Blazers' 130 points was the most scored by a Celtic opponent all season. . . After tallying a season-low three points at New York the previous evening, Clyde Drexler posted the lone Trail Blazer triple-double of the year with a season-high 39 points, 12 assists and 11 rebounds. . . All five Blazer starters scored in double figures, with Terry Porter (15 points, 14 assists) and Buck Williams (15 points, 10 rebounds) charting double-doubles. . . Six Celtics tallied double-digits in scoring, led by Larry Bird (22 points, 12 rebounds) and Kevin McHale (21 points, 13-14 FTs). . . The Blazers shot .528 from the field while their defense held the Celtics to a .467 balance sheet.

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.

Portland won its seventh straight game. . . The Trail Blazers jumped out to a 32-24 first period lead behind Clyde Drexler's 13-point performance. . . The margin swelled to 27 points in the third quarter before Golden State began closing the gap. . . The difference stayed at least eight points down the stretch. . . Williams was 10-of-11 from the field (.909) for 23 points and grabbed 15 rebounds. . . The Blazers dominated Golden State on the boards with a 57-34 advantage.

WARRIORS 116, BLAZERS 111, December 15, 1989
At Portland (Game 23, 16-7)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
33-20	32-29	24-31	22-36	111-116	12,884

Golden State won in Portland for only the second time in its last 23 visits. . . The Blazers had a 19-point lead in the second period, and a 65-49 halftime edge. . . The second half was all Golden State as the Warriors' Chris Mullin exploded for 16 points and 7 rebounds. . . Portland's reserves were outscored, 45-13 by the Warriors bench.

WARRIORS 135, BLAZERS 130, January 31, 1990
At Golden State (Game 43, 31-12)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
32-22	34-31	30-43	34-39	130-135	15,025

Portland posted a team record 28 assists on 29 field goals to take a 66-53 halftime lead. . . The second half once again was all Golden State as the Warriors lived on the free throw line. . . The Warriors finished 49-of-52 (.942) at the line, a Portland opponents record for free throws made. . . Mitch Ritchmond was 16-of-16 from the line on his way to a 22-point second half. . . He finished with 28 points. . . The loss wasted a fine effort by Clyde Drexler, who contributed 38 points (15-25 FGs) to the Portland effort.

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
24-32	27-29	28-21	16-22	95-104	12,884

The Bullets' 104 points would be the smallest total given up by Portland in a loss during the 1989-90 season. . . Washington used a 12-2 streak to run up an 8-point lead that stretched to 10 at halftime. . . Jeff Malone scored 21 points (8-11 FGs) in the first half. . . Portland continued to trail until catching Washington at 95 with 4:41 left in the game. . . Neither team made a field goal in the closing five minutes, but the Bullets converted nine free throws to take the victory. . . Malone finished with 37 points.

BLAZERS 116, BULLETS 113, March 10, 1990

Portland's win completed a 4-0 road trip, only the second such road sweep in Trail Blazer history. . . Portland's only other 4-0 trip came in 1977-78. . . Washington led by one at the half after Bullets stalwarts Jeff Malone and Bernard King combined for 30 points. . . The Blazers charged back behind Clyde Drexler's 17 points to post a 38-point third period. . . Trailing 114-113 with 38 seconds left, King missed a pair of free throws. . . Buck Williams nabbed an offensive rebound to help Portland run the clock out.

A GUIDE TO PERSONNEL PROCEDURES

ACTIVE LIST: A team must carry a minimum of 11, and no more than 12, players on its active roster. At no time shall a team be permitted to dress fewer than eight players for a regular season game or nine for a playoff game. During the offseason and training camp, teams may carry no more than 20 active players.

INJURED LIST: Any player placed on the injured list due to injury or illness, must sit out at least five of his team's regular-season games before he may be restored to the active list. For players injured near the end of the season, the rule is to mean the players must sit out five games or as many games as remain in the regular season.

TRADING DEADLINE: No trades or sales among teams are permitted after 9:00 P.M. eastern time, February 21. From that point to the end of the regular season, player additions can be made through the waiver procedure or by acquiring free agents.

WAIVERS: From August 15 to the end of the regular season, clubs may claim waived players within 48 hours after notice. Players waived at any other time, may be claimed within 10 days. If no teams claim the waived player, he becomes a free agent. If more than one club claims a waived player, the one with the lesser record at that time claims the player. The waiver price shall be $1,000 per player payable to the League Office.

TEN-DAY CONTRACT: On or after the 55th day following the season's first game, a team may sign a player to a 10-day contract solely for the purpose of replacing an injured player. No player may be signed to more than two 10-day agreements by a single team in the same season.

GUARANTEED CONTRACT DATE: On the 56th day of the regular season, all player contracts become guaranteed for the remainder of the season.

AMATEUR ELIGIBILITY RENUNCIATION: A player whose high school class has graduated shall become eligible for the college draft if he renounces his intercollegiate basketball eligibility by written notice to the NBA at least 45 days prior to the draft. Prior to 45 days before the draft, teams may not make direct or indirect contact with players who have eligibility left. Clubs may contact players without remaining eligibility, but may not discuss compensation.

TRADING OF FIRST DRAFT CHOICES: No team may sell or trade its right to select a player in the first round of the college draft if the result of such an exchange would be to leave the club without first-round picks in any two consecutive college drafts.

PRE-DRAFT CAMPS: Prior to the college draft, teams are prohibited from conducting so-called "mini-camps" for prospective players eligible for the draft.

EXPANSION EXPLAINED

To accommodate expansion, the NBA has adopted a rotating divisional alignment system that will be in effect through next season.

"This rotating system will give fans in these new franchise cities a chance to see all the stars of the NBA several times in the first three years," said NBA Commissioner David Stern. "Then, in 1991, the teams will settle into their most logical geographical divisions, which we hope will enable them to build rivalries with existing teams in the same area."

Following are the divisional affiliations for the NBA's four newest members.

	East Atlantic	East Central	West Midwest
1988-89	Charlotte		Miami
1989-90	Miami	Orlando	Charlotte Minnesota
1990-91	Miami	Charlotte	Minnesota Orlando

BILL SCHONELY

"Good evening basketball fans, wherever you may be. . ." With that statement Bill Schonely is doing what he does best, and what few others do nearly as well. For 20 years and more than 1,800 games, he's been bringing Trail Blazer basketball to radio listeners from California north to Alaska. Only two broadcasters, Boston's Johnny Most (37 years) and the Lakers' Chick Hearn (29 years) have been with their teams longer than Schonely. With that experience has come a reputation as one of the best play-by-play men in the business.

Schonely's voice is perhaps the most recognizable in Oregon, as the Blazer radio network is one of the largest in the NBA with coverage in more than 30 Northwest markets. He's also become a national commodity as narrator of the NBA promotional spots that cover the country's television markets.

A native of Norristown, Penn., Schonz, as he's known to many, served in the U.S. Marine Corps before settling in Seattle where he worked as sports director of KVI radio for seven years. He served as the voice of the Seattle Totems of the Western Hockey League (and would later work for the NHL's Oakland Seals), University of Washington football, and Seattle Angels and Seattle Pilots baseball teams. The Pilots departed after just one season and the newly-created Portland Trail Blazers of the NBA came calling in search of their first announcer.

Schonely worked his 1,500th Blazer basketball game January 4, 1987. Friends and supporters from across the country paid tribute, and the date was proclaimed "Bill Schonely Day" by Portland Mayor Bud Clark. The second 1,500 is well underway.

MIKE RICE

Rice was an honorable mention All-America selection at Duquesne as a senior, when he led the Dukes to a third-place national ranking and an NIT invitation. Selected in the eighth round of the 1962 NBA Draft by the Detroit Pistons, Rice opted instead to pursue a career in coaching. After recording a 245-71 (.773) ledger in 13 years at the high school level, Rice entered the college ranks in 1977 as an assistant coach at his college alma mater.

After being named head coach of the Dukes the next year, he guided them to a 62-49 (.559) record from 1978-1982. After leading Duquesne to two NIT appearances and twice-earning Eastern Eight "Coach of the Year" honors, Rice went on to Youngstown State in 1982. During his five-year tenure, the Penguins earned a 20-win season and two second-place finishes in the Ohio Valley Conference. Twice he coached squads to the title game in the OVC tournament.

Rice moved to the broadcast booth in 1987 as a college basketball analyst for ESPN. A regular on ESPN's "Big Monday" lineup, he provided commentary for the games in the Big West as the primary analyst for the Western Athletic Conference. In addition to numerous regular season contests, Rice has also worked women's NCAA regional championship games, the Division II national championship game and high school all-star games. In 1989, he added additional broadcast duties with SportsChannel America as the primary analyst on their World Basketball League broadcasts. The WBL was familiar territory to Rice, who joined the Youngstown Pride in 1987 first as head coach, and later as director of basketball operations.

His wife Kathy is a former Duquesne Duchess basketball player. The couple has two daughters, Susan and Stephanie, both graduates of Syracuse University where they played tennis and one son, Mike, who has played basketball at Fordham University.

HENRY WEINHARD

Henry Weinhard
Brewmaster, No. 1. 5'10", 171 lbs.
Born: 1830, Wurtemburg, Germany
High School: Wurtemburg Area
College: Brewers apprentice

At the age of 22, and after years of apprenticeship, a talented Henry Weinhard decided he was ready for the major leagues. Upon surveying his options, Henry determined the best opportunity for a rookie such as him was in America.

In 1852 he came to the United States and immediately found a berth with the brewers in Cincinati, Ohio. He spent four years with this team polishing his skills.

As a free agent, he was intrigued by reports concerning bright openings on the Pacific coast. So early in 1856 he made the long voyage, via the isthmus, to the far west and hooked up with a Vancouver, Washington organization where he plied his trade for six months.

He then felt the time was right to make his move, so, in 1856, he established his own brewery near Fort Vancouver. It wasn't long before soldiers, loggers and trappers of the area became very big Henry Weinhard fans.

In 1860 he moved his operations to its present location on Burnside in Portland. From then on, Henry chalked up an enviable record of victories. He kept acquiring more equipment and adding more facilities to constantly increase his output while stubbornly maintaining the high level of excellence he had become known for. Everywhere along the coast Weinhard's beer was recognized as unsurpassed by any other native product.

Henry's experience and foresight prompted him to locate in Portland because he realized this area would eventually become the primary source of premium brewing ingredients in the United States. Time has proven him right.

Rare, two-row malting barley, for example, is grown in very few areas of the country, but Oregon's Klamath Basin is the most prominent. And the unique Cascade hops — which Henry recognized as being equal if not superior to the exalted Hallertau hop of Bavaria are raised here in Oregon.

Today, two labels continue in the proud, teutonic tradition set forth by Henry Weinhard 124 years ago. The perennial hometown favorite, Blitz-Weinhard, and the handmade, ultra-premium that is his namesake, Henry Weinhard's Private Reserve.

Trailblazer fans can expect a lot of good things from both of them this season. Again.

BLAZER TELEVISION NETWORK

Flagship station KOIN-TV, Channel 6, will air 19 Blazer road games and the season-opener at Home against Houston. The Blazer Television Network reaches nearly every television set in Oregon from KOIN in Portland to southern Oregon.

PAT LAFFERTY

This season, Pat Lafferty celebrates his 20th anniversary as an Oregon broadcaster and his 5th year as the TV play-by-play announcer for the Trail Blazers. In that time, he has never missed a broadcast.

A Portland native and 1967 graduate of the University of Oregon, Lafferty also serves the Portland front office as the senior account executive in Sponsor Services and as co-host of Courtside: Monday Night.

Lafferty began his broadcast career at KLOO Radio in Corvallis where he was Sports Director for 15 years. He also served as assistant station manager, morning air personality and was the station's top advertising account executive. He was the voice of Corvallis High School football and basketball and Oregon State baseball for 15 years, worked as an analyst on OSU basketball telecasts for four seasons and hosted Beaver Coach Ralph Miller's weekly television program for five years. He also has the distinction of once broadcasting a PAC-10 track meet, 15 innings of baseball and a football game on the same day!

A sports historian, Lafferty is a member of the Society for American Baseball research and has done pioneering work in the field of basketball team performance.

Prior to entering the broadcast field, the 45-year old Lafferty spent three years in the Army, serving in Vietnam in 1970. He and his wife, Isae, are the parents of 16-year old twin sons, Dan and Sean.

STEVE JONES

One of the most visible members of the Trail Blazers organization, Steve Jones is in his eighth year as analyst for Blazer telecasts. For the last three years he has served in the same capacity for the league's national telecasts on TNT and TBS, earning a reputation as one of the bright young stars on the national scene and is now on the NBC team that is in its first year broadcasting NBA games.

Jones is a native of Portland who led Franklin High School to the state basketball championships in 1959 before going on to play at the University of Oregon. He paced the Ducks in scoring during the 1963-64 season. Jones earned all-star honors during his eight seasons in the now-defunct ABA, then played the 1975-76 season with the Trail Blazers before retiring.

Jones' broadcasting career began in 1976 (the season after he retired), when he became a color commentator for CBS. He was part of the network's announcing team that handled the Trail Blazers famed Championship game. Also that year, he served as color analyst for the Blazers. Steve continued for three seasons with CBS, also working with the Denver Nuggets during that time.

Finally, in 1979, Jones came home to Portland to join Bill Schonely at the Blazer radio microphone. During his tenure with the Blazers, Steve has also been with the USA Cable Network as a commentator for NBA games.

He stepped aside in 1981 on radio broadcasts to devote a full-time effort to the club's talk show, "Blazer Sports Talk." The show, now known as "Courtside. . . with Steve Jones," has become the most popular sports talk show in Oregon and is aired not only prior to every Blazer game, but also on Monday nights throughout the year.

BLAZER COURTSIDE

"Courtside. . . with Steve Jones" airs for one hour on KEX (AM 1190) 90 minutes prior to every Blazer game. "Courtside: Monday Night" airs on KEX from 6:05-8:00 p.m. on Monday nights for 48 weeks a year and is hosted by Steve Jones and Pat Lafferty. Fans can participate in both shows by calling 225-1190 from Portland, 585-1190 from Salem, 256-1190 from Vancouver, and 1-800-432-DUNK toll free from other areas.
